

What we do

Trans Comms designs, installs and supports structured cabling infrastructure, data communication and audio-visual solutions, along with both conventional and specialist electrical power systems. We also offer a comprehensive IT support service and have experienced, professional engineers and technicians available for contract work.

The company is made up of five independent operating divisions each with the specialist skills and expertise needed to deliver their individual service offer. The five divisions interact and collaborate to ensure Trans Comms provides a complete service.

Our aim is to provide clients with a complete service, one that makes anything to do with their cabling infrastructure, data and AV systems and electrical power installations 'stress free', causing minimal disruption to their day-to-day operations.
